

A bird's-eye view of the famous "Lost Battalion," heroes of the Argonne, upon their return to the United States. The men are lined up on a New York street after leaving the S. S. America.

Photo by International Film Service.

French troops of the allied forces arriving at Archangel, Russia, aboard a British warship.

Photo by Central News Service.

Miss Isabel Villiers of Boston, Mass., the first woman to enlist in the Signal Corps, returns from France with gold chevrons. She won the commendation of her officers by her steadfast devotion to duty.

By International Film Service.

Paderewski, Polish premier, in Paris, with members of his staff.

By International Film Service.

Gov. Roberts of Tennessee and his daughter Helen, who was sponsor for the new battleship Tennessee.

© Press Illustrating Service.

Sir Eric Drummond, named as the first secretary of the league of nations.

By Central News Photo Service.

American soldiers, on leave in Paris, visiting the gallery of battles in the Palace of Versailles.

Photo by Underwood & Underwood.

The congressional mission in Belgium hears shocking stories from children orphaned by the Huns. The photograph was snapped at St. Ann's Orphanage, Brussels. The children saw their mothers and fathers placed against a wall and shot.

© International Film Service.

Representatives of many nations attend the Red Cross conference at Cannes. Henry P. Davison of the American Red Cross is seated in the center foreground.

By International Film Service.